

Midjourney is an independent research lab that delves into the creation of new forms of thought and works on enhancing the imaginative capabilities of the human species. It operates as a small, self-funded entity concentrating on design, human infrastructure, and artificial intelligence. The Midjourney website provides documentation and a user guide that serves as a resource for individuals to join their vibrant community. This community collaborates on Discord and the Web to bring to life incredible new worlds, characters, and imagery from simple text descriptions.

The site hosts a variety of documentation including a Quick Start Guide, tips on getting started, using Discord, prompt writing, and creating images. It also includes information on subscription plans, aspect ratios, and details on various model versions. Midjourney promotes a space for collaboration and creation, inviting users to explore their creativity through AI and community interaction.